

I am 70½ yrs. old and in good health
and am able to work daily in my nursery business.
I have taken vitamins and a.c. nutrients for years and credit my health at least in part to these nutrients.
They are important enough to me that ~~its~~ their continued supply is one of the primary issues that determines who I vote for. Protect our rights to make informed choices to buy them.

Stan Megos

THE UNUSUAL IN PERENNIALS - SHRUBS - TREES - BONSAI
FOR THE COLLECTOR AND SERIOUS GARDENER

THE
VARIEGATED FOLIAGE
NURSERY

245 WESTFORD ROAD • EASTFORD, CT 06242

OVER 1,000 VARIETIES ON DISPLAY - MOST FOR SALE

OPEN: Wed. to Friday 12-Sunset, Saturday & Sunday 10-Sunset

Phone/Fax (860) 974-3951 - For Directions

STAN MEGOS - PRINCIPAL

Stan Megos
245 Westford Road
Eastford, Ct 06242

99N-0391

C 79

FDA OVERSIGHT HEARING ON CODEX BADLY NEEDED

The Honorable Dan Burton, Chairman
House Government Reform and Oversight Committee
c/o Milt Copulos/Beth Clay
Room 2157 RHOB
Washington, DC 20515

3765 '99 SEP 17 P1:01

Dear Congressman Burton:

Prior to last September's meeting of the Codex Committee on Nutrition and Food for Special Dietary Use, you and four other members of Congress strongly requested in writing that the FDA's Dr. Yetley remove the second paragraph from the U.S. codex comments on agenda item #5 (vitamins and minerals), because it contradicted the first paragraph, and lent credence to the unscientific notion that "maximum upper potency limits" should be put on vitamins and minerals. Dr. Yetley not only ignored your written request, but John Hammell caught her doing so on videotape which has been put on the Life Extension Foundation's website in the political section, along with footage of John being forced to stop taping by the German Codex Chairman (<http://www.lef.org>). A complete account of what happened is available at <http://www.iahf.com> under "breaking news."

From a standpoint of safety, there is no justification for attempting to apply a "Risk Assessment" document which was designed for evaluating toxic pharmaceutical drugs, to dietary supplements, which have been well established through the National Association of Poison Control Centers, and numerous other sources to be extraordinarily safe, even when consumed in doses much higher than the RDA. Orthomolecular physicians such as Bonnie Camo, M.D. have seen doses as high as 3 grams per day of niacin used in complete safety, while the National Academy of Sciences and FDA are advocating a maximum upper potency limit of just 35 mg, just because a few highly sensitive individuals experience a tingling sensation known as the "niacin flush" when taking niacin in low doses. There is nothing unsafe about the niacin flush, which actually helps circulation and is considered pleasurable by some.

It is obvious to consumers around the world that the FDA is attempting to use the highly unscientific, and heavily prejudiced National Academy of Sciences document titled "A Risk Assessment Model for Establishing Upper Limits for Nutrients" as a means of moving beyond the consumer generated impasse at the Codex Committee on Nutrition and Foods for Special Dietary Use. The FDA has announced its intention to harmonize its regulations to emerging Codex standards in an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking that was published in the Federal Register on July 7, 1997, vol. 62, #129 pp.36243-36248. You can view this at <http://iahf.com/codx-fda.txt>.

I urge you to call John Hammell, Bonnie Camo M.D., and other witnesses to a Hearing before your Committee, and I urge you to force the FDA to withdraw the second paragraph of its comments along with the NAS Risk Assessment document in keeping with current US Law. Congress has spoken clearly on this with the passage of DSHEA, and most recently again in October of 1997 when dietary supplements were specifically exempted from the harmonization language in the FDA Reform Bill.

Name: STANLEY MEGOS Date: 3/17 1999

Address: 245 WESTFORD RD

City: EASTFORD CT

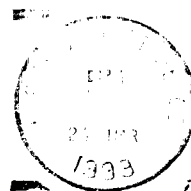

State or Province: CT

Zip or Postal Code and Country: 06272

The New, Rare, and Unusual in Perennials - Shrubs - Trees
FOR THE COLLECTOR AND SERIOUS GARDENER

THE
VARIEGATED FOLIAGE
NURSERY

245 WESTFORD ROAD • EASTFORD, CT 06242

The Honorable Dan Burton, Chairman

House Government Reform and Oversight Committee

CA Milt Copulos / Beth Clay

Room 2157 RHOB

Washington, D.C. 20513